

If I was to make a yearbook of my summer vacation, I imagine it would look something like this...

- Theme: The reoccurring theme of the yearbook would definitely have to be The Center of the Tootsie Pop, because it gives the readers a little taste of how my summer went. My summer basically consisted of working at either of my jobs, sometimes both in the same day. What the center of the Tootsie Pop represents is the little surprises that came my way throughout the summer. All the working I did before I received these surprises represents how many licks it took to get to the center.
- Feature stories: The yearbook would include a brief description of the many, many hours I worked over the summer, as well as four short stories that can only be described as The Center of the Tootsie Pop.

The stories would include...

- Going to Mankato, MN to see Keith Urban perform live at the Midwest Wireless Center.
- Taking a trip with some buddies to Valleyfair.
- Attending a wedding where I was able to dance the night away.
- Going to a Twins game at the Metrodome with some of my friends.

Pictures I'd be sure to put in would be...

- Loads of photos of Keith Urban onstage, some of my friends and I at the hotel and in the car.
- Photos of our group on the Wild Thing and other attractions at Valleyfair.
- Photos of the wedding party, and the ceremony itself. Pictures of the reception, and guests on the dance floor.
- Pictures of the Twins and the Metrodome. Photos of the group I was with in Twins apparel.
